REICH 'EXPERTS' CONFESS PLANS TO HIT INDUSTRY

Eight Grabbed Following Landings From U-Boats In North, South

MUCH EQUIPMENT FOUND

Numerous Key Objectives Named For Destruction; All Face Execution

WASHINGTON, June 29 — Amid demands that the eight Nazi agents landed in this country from submarines be quickly shot, the Justice department disclosed today that nearly 2,900 German nationals have been arrested since outbreak of war, in a widespread campaign to prevent sabotage. While most of the Germans previously arrested in the nation-wide drive were placed in internment camps without trial, the sensational seizure of the eight saboteurs led to immediate demands in Congress that the agents be tried for espionage and treason. Two of the men are American citizens and, legal experts said, can be charged with treason.

NEW YORK, June 29—New arrests loomed today on the heels of the capture by government agents of eight Nazi saboteurs who landed in rubber boats from enemy submarines on the Long Island and Florida coasts with orders to blow up bridges, wreck key war production plants and create a reign of terror. Several "fifth columnists"—described by FBI officials as "contacts" and "associates" of the eight saboteurs—have been arrested and, it was announced, others may be taken into custody in the near future. Speculation that other saboteurs and spies may have been landed from submarines along the Atlantic coast was deprecated by FBI officials who said: "Two landings were made—and we got everyone who landed." The possibility remained however that other parties of saboteurs and spies may have been landed at remote beaches along the seaboard and led to an intensification of military and civilian vigilance. Identity of the "several" associates of the eight saboteurs who have also been seized was not disclosed.

All Carefully Trained
The eight saboteurs, all carefully trained by the German high command, were landed from submarines in two groups of four each. One group landed at Amagansett Beach, L. I., on June 13, the other group at Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., on June 17. All eight (Continued on Page Two)

F. G. R. EXTENDS RUBBER DRIVE

Disappointing Reports Sent To White House; Hoarding Being Charged

WASHINGTON, June 29 — President Roosevelt today extended the rubber collection drive until midnight July 10, after receiving the very disappointing report that up to the night of June 27, only 219,000 tons had been collected throughout the entire country. The President acted on the recommendation of Secretary of Interior Ickes and William Boyd Jr., chairman of the collections campaign, who charged that, among other things, hoarding of rubber was responsible for the poor showing. The 219,000 ton figure announced by Boyd does not include rubber in the hands of the nation's 20,000 junk dealers, or scrap rubber turned in to filling stations since Saturday night.

SWEENEY PLANS EASY WAY FOR SOLDIERS' VOTE

COLUMBUS, June 29 — Secretary of State John E. Sweeney today outlined a plan which he said would enable thousands of Ohio service men to vote in the forthcoming elections because it eliminates needless red tape. Sweeney proposes to issue special registration cards to soldiers in camps outside their home state. The soldier would sign the card and return it to his home county election board which would then mail him a ballot. He would mark his candidate preferences and return the ballot to the board. This course would do away with much of the present involved process of casting an absent voter's ballot. The registration cards would need certification only from the soldier's commanding officer. It would be up to the various election boards to see that no service man cast more than one ballot. The secretary of state said that as many as 300,000 soldier voters might be affected by his streamlined plan. He said relatives and fraternal organizations would be asked to assist in getting registration cards into the hands of the men.

RUN ON STAPLES FEARED

House Approves Big Measure For Operation Of OPA, WPB, Other Boards

WASHINGTON, June 29—Congressional testimony of Price Administrator Leon Henderson today disclosed that the nation faces rationing of 15 new commodities, most of them before the end of the year.

Henderson's remarks were released as the House appropriations committee approved a $1,830,000,000 appropriation bill for the national war agencies, including the OPA, which suffered a 40 percent cut in its funds as recommended by the budget bureau.

In addition to the OPA appropriation, the bill carries $68,000,000 for the War Production Board, $1,100,000,000 for the war shipping administration, and a $100,000,000 "blank check" for President Roosevelt.

Other disclosures in the 1,350 pages of testimony on the bill included:

1. WPB Chief Donald M. Nelson's prediction that the nation will be on a total war economy "by the end of the year." He estimated production of war goods would hit a rate of $75,000,000,000 a year at that time.
2. Henderson's assertion that there is no present plan for requisitioning private automobiles or accessories, but that this may (Continued on Page Two)

War Bulletins

LONDON—Reports circulating abroad that a secret gentlemen's agreement exists between Britain and Germany whereby neither will bomb the capital of the other was denied today by an authoritative British spokesman. (A neutral reporter arriving in Stockholm from Berlin said that residents of the German capital console themselves on hearing of devastating British attacks on industrial areas in the Reich by circulating a rumor that Berlin will not be smashed from the air since the Nazis have agreed not to bomb London.)

NEW YORK — Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, the so-called "economic trouble-shooter" of the British empire, was in the United States today for a series of talks with State department officials on long-range economic problems dealing with post-war reconstruction, planning and relief.

LONDON—Alleged Communists were reported by the German-controlled Danish newspaper, Fædrelandet, to have clashed in a small Netherlands town with Dutch Nazis following a meeting of a Nazi faction, the Anets, Dutch news agency, said today.

Registration Of Youths To Be Finished Tuesday

Two hundred and eighty-nine youths between the ages of 18 and 20 registered Saturday with the Pickaway draft board. Remaining boys of this age will register all day Tuesday.

Estimates indicated that some 400 youths would be included in this fifth registration and the large sign-up Saturday would leave only 125 to complete the group Tuesday.

Officials were highly pleased with Saturday's program with a staff of volunteers aiding in the work. After the entire group has filed cards the draft board will begin mailing questionnaires to the youths prior to classification.

Two additional inductees for the month of June were announced Monday. Bernard Kruskamp, Ashville, and Clarence Miller, Kingston, route 1, have been accepted for duty in the Army.

COLUMBUS, June 29 — With about half of an estimated total of 165,000 Ohio youths already registered, state Selective Service officials today predicted that Ohio's 330 local draft boards would have a comparatively light day tomorrow, when the 18 to 20½-year-olds finish signing up for the draft.

When tomorrow's registration is completed, the government will have a record of every man in the nation from 18 to 65—approximately 43,000,000.

Draft boards tomorrow will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. The 18 and 19 year old classes are now

NIMITZ CLAIMS 18,000 SAILORS DEAD AT MIDWAY

PEARL HARBOR, June 29—Some 18,000 Japanese sailors, flyers and soldiers were killed during the battle of Midway island, it was estimated today as Admiral Chester V. Nimitz revealed that 19 Japanese warships had been sunk or damaged in the epic battle.

The commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet announced from his headquarters here that nine of Japan's warships were definitely sunk and 10 others damaged.

Admiral Nimitz' announcement was the first definite confirmation that four Japanese aircraft carriers had been sunk. These included the Akagi and Kaga, two of Nippon's most modern carriers, and the Soryu and Hiryu.

All of the aircraft aboard these ships, numbering about 275, were lost. Attesting to the large toll of Jap sailors, Admiral Nimitz said that the crews of the planes and carriers also were lost, "except probably a few rescued by Japanese surface ships."

Two heavy cruisers, probably the Mogami and Mikuma, were sunk and three destroyers sent to the bottom. It was believed possible that a fourth destroyer may also have been sunk.

The damaged vessels included two, and probably three, battleships. One of these was severely (Continued on Page Two)

Fall of strategic Mersa Matruh was threatened today as it was officially admitted that Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces had reached a point southeast of the vital terminus of the Egyptian coastal rail line.

BERLIN, June 29—The British-held North African fortress of Mersa Matruh has been stormed by axis forces and more than 6,000 prisoners taken, the German high command claimed today in a special bulletin. Numerous batteries were destroyed, it was asserted, while 36 tanks were disabled and large quantities of war material were taken.

Mersa Matruh, northern anchor of the British defense line, is 180 miles west of the great British Mediterranean naval base of Alexandria.

que which stated that heavy fighting on the desert now was in progress not only southwest of the city, but southeast as well.

The capture of the rail center already was claimed by axis sources, and London quarters admitted the possibility that Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck had ordered Lt. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie to withdraw his eighth Imperial Army from the area.

If Mersa Matruh has fallen, then the German and Italian forces have secured a foothold on the important rail lines leading to Alexandria and thus to Suez.

The British communique gave no details. Consequently, it could not be determined whether the Nazis had broken through the British defense line previously said to run south from Mersa Matruh to the Quattara depression, or whether Ritchie had withdrawn from the south.

A wood stove was used for cooking and there was no gasoline or kerosene in the two-story home.

Victims were John Brichler and his children, Paul, 17; Lester and Sylvester, twins, 13; Roman, 7, and Marita, 4.

Two other daughters, Magdalen, 15, and Viola, 9, were awakened by the shouts of their father and ran to safety.

UTILITY'S LEGAL OFFICE STUDYING LIGHTS FOR CITY

Question of turning on Circleville's street lights Wednesday, July 1, has been turned over to the legal department of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company. A resolution approved by council by a 5-1 vote at its meeting last week has been delivered to the utility by Council Clerk Fred R. Nicholas.

C. T. Gilmore, Circleville manager, said Monday that he is awaiting instructions from his main offices in Columbus. If the resolution is found to be legal, it is likely that the night lights will be turned on.

Street lights have been off since December 29 under a council economy measure.

men were trapped by the FBI before they could launch a campaign of bombing and terror which might have claimed many lives and have seriously delayed America's war effort.

Fake Cards Found

FBI officials revealed today that the eight saboteurs had in their possession when arrested forged draft registration and Social Security cards. It was also announced that about $20,000 has been recovered in addition to the almost $150,000 in American currency found on the men when captured.

From caches in the beach sands government agents also recovered large stores of explosives buried by the Germans when they landed.

"All eight men have made complete confessions," it was stated by E. J. Connelley, assistant director of the New York FBI bureau.

Public clamor for summary punishment of the German saboteurs found quick response in various circles. The question whether they would be turned over to the military authorities to face court martial—and possibly a firing squad—would be tried in the civil courts had not been determined.

NEW YORK, June 29—Earl J. Connelley, assistant to J. Edgar Hoover in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, smiled today when asked by a reporter whether any of the eight German trained saboteurs put up a fight when arrested. "They're still alive aren't they?" he replied.

To 'Deal Thoroughly'

In Washington, however, Attorney General Francis J. Biddle declared the Department of Justice would deal "swiftly and thoroughly" with the German agents, all of whom were trained for their mission of destruction and terror in a special school for sabotage in Berlin.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, revealed that among the objectives of the four men landed on Long Island were the bombing of all bridges leading to New York City, wrecking of the city's water supply line, blasting of the Pennsylvania railroad's terminal at Newark, N. J., sabotaging of the huge Niagara Falls hydro-electric plant and the wrecking of three plants of the Aluminum Corporation of America at Massena, N. Y., Alcoa, Tenn., and East St. Louis, Ill., and a cryolite plant in Philadelphia.

FBI officials were cagey in discussing their mop-up campaign following the capture of the saboteurs. The German agents evidently were shadowed for some time before they were arrested and in this way the identity of their accomplices became known.

The arrests of the eight brought over on submarines did not take place until June 20, 22 and 23. Of the eight, six drifted to New York, and the other two went to Chicago.

Connelley, assistant to Hoover, hinted that the agents—being well fixed financially—spent a good deal of time eating. He was asked if they spent their time in Yorkville, New York's German section. He gave the impression that they did not—that they knew better than to go there.

Stayed on Broadway

"Broadway is a good street, with a lot of good restaurants," he remarked significantly.

The FBI official revealed new details of the meticulous planning with which the German high command had prepared in its sabotage campaign.

Not only were the saboteurs provided with forged draft registration and Social Security cards, but their specially built traveling bags contained secret compartments for money and lists of objectives. They wore civilian clothes when arrested.

The FBI was silent on the detective work that led to the capture of the saboteurs. They implied that this may not become publicly known until after the war. At present it is a military secret. They did indicate, however, that most of the arrests were made in the New York area.

It is believed that the "contacts" and "associates" of the saboteurs who were subsequently arrested were picked up in New York, although it was rumored that one of them was taken into custody in Chicago.

Contacted Men Nabbed

The new arrests were of men with whom the saboteurs have had contact in their wanderings about New York, Chicago and cities in Florida. They were men with whom the saboteurs had talked to or had been seen with in public places—men who might have been useful in helping them carry out the sabotage program.

FBI officials refused to discuss a story in circulation to the effect that a coast guardman tipped off the arrival of the four German agents at Amagansett Beach, L. I., on the night of Saturday, June 13. This beach is a little over 100 miles from New York City.

According to the story, the guardman was seized by the invading saboteurs, and thrown down on the sand and disarmed. The Germans debated killing him—but finally reached a strange decision.

The story had it that they agreed to spare his life when he accepted a $270 bribe which the Nazis offered him to keep his mouth shut.

Instead of keeping mum the guardman turned the money over to his superiors and related his experience in detail. The guardman understands German and knew what the saboteurs were saying in German. The information he gave, according to the story, led to a quick tracking down of the Nazi agents. The identity of the guardman has not been disclosed.

Two U. S. Citizens

All eight Nazi spies are held under the closest surveillance. They are Ernest Burger, Edward Kerling, Robert Quirin, George Dasch, Herman Neubauer, Werner Thiel, Heinrich Heinck and Herbert Haupt. Two of the eight—Burger and Haupt—are United States citizens, while the rest are aliens. The citizens can be prosecuted for treason, the aliens may be prosecuted as spies. Punishment for either crime could be the death penalty.

been thrown back each time without significant gains.

Southeast of Kharkov Nazi Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's drive along the railroad towards the Caucasus evidently had exhausted itself for the time being. Dispatches said that Von Bock's forces were digging in to hold positions won in his offensive.

(In Stockholm it was reported that Russian Commando units had landed to the rear of German lines near the Arctic port of Murmansk and created a critical situation for the Germans during a two-week period in which they remained before they were obliged to retreat.)

Meanwhile the Soviet newspaper Krasnyy in a dispatch from the fighting fronts charged that the Germans were using poison gas against Russian guerrillas. There was no official confirmation of the report.

The Soviets, answering German claims that the Russian army in the Volkov sector, north of Lake Ilmen in the Leningrad region, had been "annihilated" said that their forces in that area still are holding out.

(Hitler's headquarters claimed in a special announcement that after Soviet forces in February crossed the Volkov river and drove a deep wedge into the German front the Nazis, aided by "Spanish, Dutch and Flemish volunteers," cut off the Russians and annihilated them. The Germans asserted that 31,750 Russians were taken prisoner and that the Soviet offensive to relieve Leningrad had collapsed.)

In the southwest Pacific, there were indications that the Japanese again might be preparing to move against the United Nations positions in that area. This came in the form of a communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announcing that for the second successive night American and Australian flyers had attacked enemy dispositions at Lae and Salamaua in New Guinea and at Tulagi in the Solomon Islands.

EDUCATED SOLDIERS

THE American soldier of today is a better educated man, take him in the mass, than was his predecessor in 1917. Only nine percent of those in the last war had completed high school or had any college training, whereas forty-one percent of all white soldiers inducted so far have been through high school, some with a little work at college to their credit.

White men of military age in the West are better educated than those in the north central and northeastern regions. Men from the South are less well educated than either of those groups.

This situation might have been guessed by anyone familiar with educational conditions. But it does not do to look down on the South for this reason. The levels are rising in the South more rapidly than many people suppose.

When any group of people become really interested in education as contributing to community betterment, they are likely to take it seriously and to make strong progress. This is happening now in the South, which has been awakening to the need for more and better education of all races and classes.

Gain is only attained, however, when members of school boards stop thinking what was good enough for their grandfathers is good enough for their children. It isn't.

DOCTOR BILLS

TO CHECK inflation, instalment purchases have been sharply cut down. Payments on goods bought from department stores must be completed in two months instead of the customary three. And the practice of buying other goods on the instalment plan has been attacked in two ways: first, by limiting the number of instalments, and second, in many cases, by forbidding the manufacture of the goods themselves. Examples are automobiles, radios and refrigerators.

This is all very well, but groups that have traditionally been paid by slow and dragging instalments must be asking, "What about us?" Such are the doctors and the dentists, whom we could not do without and whom we reward for their services by settling their bills after everybody else has been cleaned up. To enforce prompt payment of their charges might be another step toward preventing inflation. It would certainly make the doctors and dentists cheer.

As for winning the war, have you noticed the joy of those kids rolling old tires into the service station?

Yes, these Coral Sea and Midway victories were great stuff; and now where do we go from here?

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

EVERY LITTLE while some good authority warns us that we mustn't count on Herr Hitler's regime to crack up internally.

It depends on how darned internally they mean.

It may be unlikely that it'll crack up right in Germany proper.

I think most folk would have said the same thing about the Fatherland up until about the time that it cracked up under the Kaiser, but maybe it's more odd now than it was then. I've got my doubts even as to that. I was in Germany until just before the United States went into the last war and I wouldn't have thought it EVER would crack up then. Perhaps Adolf's stronger than Wilhelm was, but I've got my doubts, personally.

However, say it is so—that they're fighting for the Fuehrer, whereas they excused themselves from dying, fighting for Bill Hohenzollern.

The thing Adolf obviously has to worry about is the risk that he'll be swamped, not only by the countries he's conquered, but by his allies.

The countries he's conquered speak for themselves.

Scandinavia One Way

The so-called Low Countries, and Balkans and the German-occupied Scandinavians are as anti-Axis as our Scandinavians in Minnesota and Wisconsin. Sweden isn't occupied, but if I'm not a judge of Swedes I'm no judge, and I've been there a couple of times, and in many ways, too. Those Swedes, the last time I was in their midst, drank German destruction in Swedish punch so strong that it made me gulp.

Turkey? It's suggested that the Turks may join the Nazis.

That bunch have been misestimated. I was there right after their last revolution. They're a liberty loving crew. Our United States embassy liked 'em. Foreign Minister Hismi Pasha was one of our best friends. He gave me an interview as a fellow-democrat.

We know what's happened to originally-Axis Russia—democratic down to the ground-floor.

Finland's going floozy. It's little, but it's significant.

Now Italy? Benito Mussolini apparently is blowing up. He was muddling substantial for awhile, I can remember him when he was a good international friend of Congressmen Sam Bloom, now chairman of Uncle Sam's committee on international relations.

Benito didn't want to become anti-international.

Writing to Sol Bloom's daughter, "Have I changed, Vera?" he asked, in a letter I know about.

I suppose he hadn't.

Now, how about him?

At the time he wrote that letter Adolf Hitler hadn't been invented so much more than that.

Sol Bloom, now our house of representatives' foreign relations manager, knew him down to the ground, intimately.

I'm darned if I wouldn't like to hear from him on that basis.

Of course it involved Germany, but Germany involved Italy and vice versa.

Why, in connection with the Axis, don't we hear about the whole situation? Germany and the rest of the Axis powers are mixed.

The Lord knows that Sol's no pro-German.

But I WOULD like to know about relations between Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini at a time when Benito was proclaiming himself as far from anti-Jewish.

So am I, too.

Curiosity is all I'm talking about.

WASHINGTON LIKES CHURCHILL

WASHINGTON — Inside reaction of Administration advisers to the political tribulations of Winston Churchill is mixed. Roughly there are two groups: (1) the inner White House circle which knows Churchill well and has become a greater rooter for him politically; and, (2) some of the Army and Navy officials who are inclined to think he is a little too debonair to be a hard-boiled, thorough going military executive.

All, however, pay great tribute to his morale-building genius and the great service he did England in pulling it out of the slough immediately after the Chamberlain fiasco.

His Administration critics, however — and they are very sympathetic critics — point out that morale in England is now tops, and what she needs is a ruthless weeding out of inefficiency, and a tough executive.

Most interesting sidelight on the current Churchill debates in the House of Commons is the reaction on the Inner Circle here. Some of them view the problem of keeping Churchill in office almost as "the second front." They have come to know and like Churchill so well that perhaps unconsciously they regard each problem in the light of "what effect will this have on Churchill politically?"

Some U. S. strategists in the Army and Navy were quite frank in their criticism of Churchill's House of Commons speech after his last visit here, and felt that he had made political capital out of Roosevelt's promise of tanks and planes for Libya.

Whatever Churchill takes back with him this time will have been won with more difficulty. However, those close to the picture are not greatly worried about his political future. They point out that although the majority of Churchill's own party dislike him and personally would like to get rid of him, they don't dare have a general election, because most of them face wrathful electorates which probably would sweep them out of office.

Therefore, they prefer to keep Churchill on as the lesser of two evils.

ARGENTINE DISASTER

One unpublished fact which particularly incensed Latin Americans in connection with the recent sinking of the Argentine vessel Rio Tercero off New York was a conversation between the German submarine commander and Capt. Luis Pedro Scaless.

Immediately after the Argentine vessel sank, the submarine surfaced and picked up Capt. Scaless. Inside the submarine, the German commander questioned him on the destination of his ship, its cargo etc. The Argentine captain was burning with indignation. Not only was his vessel neutral, but the German government officially had given Latin American nations until June 26 to get their ships out of North American waters.

So before the Nazi could get anything out of him, Capt. Scaless blurted out:

"Why did you do this? It is not June 26. It is only June 22."

To which the Nazi commander replied in gruff, but very good English: "Aw, go to hell!"

However, the Nazis did relieve Captain Scaless of one embarrassment. The

Various Kinds of Diagnosis Reveal the Heart's Condition

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HEART DISEASE is becoming one of the three or four most prevalent American diseases. This is partly due to the fact that Americans now live longer—long enough to get heart disease—and also partly due to the perfection of our means of diagnosis in recognizing the different forms; few cases get missed, so they all get in the statistics.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In fact the oldest and still one of the best methods of objective diagnosis, the use of the stethoscope, was developed in connection with its use in recognizing heart disease. The difference between objective diagnosis and subjective diagnosis is that in subjective diagnosis the patient tells you what is the matter; you can neither prove nor disprove it. If a patient says, "I have a headache," there is no way on earth for you to tell whether that is true or not.

Objective Diagnosis
In objective diagnosis the physician tells the patient. If a patient has a heart murmur, the stethoscope will reveal it and the doctor is on safe and certain ground.

Another indispensable method of examining the heart in an objective way is the X-ray. It will tell the size of the heart, any bulges in the heart or great vessels. It tells things that the stethoscope cannot tell because there are certain limitations to the stethoscope. When a condition of the heart is deep-set under layers of lung tissue, the stethoscope cannot bring it to the examining ear. I saw a patient the other day who showed great dilatation of the heart and great vessels on the X-ray, whereas three very competent physicians had just pronounced the heart and chest entirely normal.

Blood Pressure Apparatus
Still another method of examining the heart is the blood pressure apparatus, which tells the condition not only of the heart but of the entire arterial system.

The last of the great objective methods of examining the heart is what is known as the electrocardiograph. This is a very delicate electric galvanometer which is able to record differences in electrical potentialities when a muscle contracts. The heart, being a muscle, makes a record on the electrocardiogram which reveals the working of its muscular contractions.

By these methods, the examiner can tell what is the matter with a heart often without even asking the patient a question. The heart makes certain sounds during its contractions and relaxations and these are transmitted by the stethoscope. There are certain normal sounds and there are a number of abnormal sounds.

With the X-ray the examiner can tell the exact size of the heart, its position in the chest and whether or not it has any weakness in its walls. The blood pressure apparatus tells the examiner how much work the heart has to do and how much work it is doing. The electrocardiograph tells whether the contraction wave of the heart passes over the right pathways, whether it does so in the normal time and whether there are any interruptions or irregularities in the contraction wave. By these various means the examiner has an objective record of the heart in action.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A. W.: Do you think the head of a bed being raised up twelve inches is of any benefit to a person with low blood pressure?
Answer: No.

E. S.: Should anyone with sinus trouble wear a hat or anything on their head? Does night air make sinus trouble any worse?
Answer: People who have sinus trouble are very sensitive to changes in temperature, drafts, etc., but so far as my experience goes, these changes do not affect the course of the disease unfavorably. There is no reason why a person with sinus disease should not wear a hat and at the same time there is no reason why he should. Night air comes under the subject of changes in temperature which I have mentioned above as being one of the factors which makes sinus patients uncomfortable. If a person with sinus disease closes the bedroom windows, that will have no influence one way or the other on the progress of the disease.

SYNOPSIS

DIAN WESTON, an Ardendale girl, who has just been jilted, more or less accidentally meets BILL ROLLINS, New York artist, who has just been jilted also, by an Ardendale girl.

CLAIRE LESTER, Claire has turned down Bill, saying that she has discovered she loves PAUL PETERS, a local boy, who is now an engineer.

YESTERDAY: Bill and Paul go out to try getting Paul's car out of the mud.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

FOR SOME moments after the two men had gone, Dian and Claire sat in silence, apparently lost in thought. Presently Dian got up.

"I might as well do my housework," she said. "I hate to get up in the morning and face a lot of dirty dishes."

"You don't mean you're going to stay out here all night, do you?" Claire asked.

"Of course. And several other nights, if I can manage it."

"But why?"

"Have you forgotten that I'm a jilted gal—and that a jilted gal in Ardendale is something?"

"Oh!" said Claire. "But what on earth's that got to do with your staying out here in this lonely spot?"

"I need to get hold of myself—be where Aunt Martha and a lot of other aren't forever reminding me of what happened—feeling sorry for me."

"I see."

"But let's not talk about that. Mind helping me with the dishes?"

"No, certainly not. Anything to keep busy until the boys get back."

As the two girls cleared the table, carried dishes out to the kitchen, washed and dried them, they talked about various and sundry matters, but they always came back to the subject of Dian's jilting and Claire's elopement—to subjects that had to do with themselves, Paul and Bill.

"How did you meet Bill Rollins?" Dian asked.

"It was at a cocktail party," said Claire. "You know, one of those Manhattan brawls, where all sorts of people come to lose their inhibitions or forget their troubles. Sue Carstairs took me—she's the girl I went up to visit; you know, the one I roomed with at Smith. She paused in the act of drying a cup and gazed out of the kitchen window to where rain-soaked trees stood close to the house. "At first I was bored, hearing actresses talk about themselves, and actors doing the same—listening to artists boast, and producers brag. And then I walked Bill. Honest, Dian, it was like having a light turned on in a room that's been dark and gloomy. He looked at me, and said, 'Well, of all things! Just like that.'"

"Why should he say a thing like that?" Dian wanted to know.

"I wondered about that, too," Claire said. "But afterwards he told me. It seems that he had a contract to illustrate a story, and couldn't seem to find just the model he wanted. And when he walked into the cocktail party, and saw me—well—I was just the type."

"Like something on a Christmas tree," said Dian. And then, "So, thus it was the romance began."

"Yes, thus it was," said Claire. "A romance that seems to be more or less on the rocks."

"Oh, it'll straighten out all right," said Claire airily.

"I hope so," said Dian. "And with few casualties."

Claire was thoughtful for a moment. Then she had a sudden idea. "I tell you what let's do!" she said. "Let's do our best to persuade Bill to stay in Ardendale for a week—and—"

"Why should we do that?" Dian cut in. "It will only complicate matters between you and Paul."

"Oh, no, it won't," Claire said. "Paul's got a week, and if we can get Bill to stay that long, we'll make a foursome. You know, Dian, four people going everywhere together—having fun—doing things."

"I'll admit it sounds nice—in some ways," Dian said. "But don't you think it might be a little embarrassing?"

"Why should it be?"

"Good Lord, Claire, don't forget you were all set to marry Bill, and that your folks knew it, even if others didn't. And the town as a whole knows you were once engaged to Paul—so—well, there you are!"

"The Ardendale people will be so busy seeing what a grand time we're having, they won't have time to gossip."

"I'm afraid you don't know Ardendale people, if that's what you think," Dian said. "Besides, had it occurred to you that perhaps Bill and Paul might not be very good actors?"

"Actors? What do you mean?"

"Don't play dumb, Claire. Two men you've jilted—rushing around with you and me. Good heavens, Claire, can't you see?"

"Nonsense!" said Claire. She watched Dian closely. "Besides," she went on, "think what it will mean to you."

"To me?"

"Yes, Dian. Don't you play dumb. Don't you see that if you are seen rushing around with Bill and Paul and me, the Ardendale people will forget all about you and Fred Mayhew?"

"There might be something in it, at that!" said Dian, interested.

"They'll think it means nothing at all to you—Fred's getting engaged to that New York girl."

"As a matter of fact," said Dian, "it doesn't mean very much to me."

"Maybe not, but you've got to show that it doesn't."

Dian sloshed hot, soapy water over the remaining dishes. A week of Bill Rollins! A chance to know him better! Sunny days out here at the farm with him, showing him the attic studio. Getting his reactions to Grandfather Weston's paintings.

"I think," she said finally, "that it's a good idea."

"And you'll help me persuade Bill to stay?" said Claire.

"Yes. Only I'm afraid what I say will carry very little weight."

"Maybe so. But just stand by, Dian, while I do my stuff. You, know, put in a word now and then—soft, appealing."

"All right," Dian smiled. "I'll do my best."

"It'll be a lot better than hiding out here," Claire said. "You know—crawling off to lick your wounds, like a wounded animal."

"Speaking of animals," Dian said, "and as one potential cat to another—how do I know Bill and Paul will want me tagging along?"

"Oh, I'll manage that!" said Claire. "I'll sort of take charge of things, as it were. First I'll have a dinner for the four of us—out at the country club. I'll have a beautifully decorated table where everyone can see us, and we'll doll up to the limit—you and I, Dian. We'll be the gayest people in Ardendale county—dancing, laughing."

"You certainly do make it sound marvelous!" said Dian.

SIX OF JOUSTS IN ASSOCIATION SHUTOUT FRAYS

COLUMBUS, June 29—Just for those baseball fans who are statistically minded and like to look up records, we present this American Association picture today:

Six of the eight games played in the loop on the Sabbath were shutouts! Further, one run was good enough to win three of the games, two runs accounted for another, and three runs won a fifth. Which may explain why the Association is looked upon as the cradle of big-league hurling.

The Columbus Red Birds, who raise their 1941 pennant tonight although only in fourth place to day, twice took last-place St. Paul, 8-3 and 1-0. Bill Crouch hurled his seventh win of the season in the opener, and Ted Wilks shaded the Saints' Joe Bowman with a four-hit effort for his fifth victory in the abbreviated nightcap.

First-place Kansas City split with Louisville in a pair of close contests, the Colonels taking the first, 3-2, while the Blues captured the 1-0 afterpiece. The split did the Blues no great harm, however, as second-place Milwaukee dropped both games to Indianapolis.

The Indians, now in a tie for fifth with a .500 percentage, shut-out the Brewers in both games, 7-0 and 5-0. This, incidentally, was the best slugging any team was able to turn in for the day.

The two best hurled games probably were those at Toledo, where the Hens, who practically share the basement with the Saints, dropped both games. A five-game Toledo winning streak was ended abruptly by a pair of five-hit shutouts by Minneapolis' Mickey Maefner in the first game and by Vanu Mungo and Owen Scheetz in the nightcap. Scores were 2-0 and 1-0.

ARMY, NAVY TO RECEIVE OVER $100,000 AT TRACK

CHICAGO, June 29—Arlington Park track officials predicted today that the Army and Navy Relief funds would get between $100,000 and $125,000 from the July 4 program next Saturday which customarily draws the biggest attendance of the meet.

The feature race of the day will be the $10,000 Stars and Stripes handicap for which have been entered 29 horses including Steel Heels, winner of the event last year; Equifox, Technician, Pumpgun, Sirroco, Staretor and other turf stars.

The race will be at a mile and three sixteenths. The Army will be represented at the Independence Day program by Maj. Gen. George Grunert, in command of the Sixth Corps area, and the Navy by Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant at the Great Lakes naval training station.

DUDLEY TOPS IN UTAH

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 29—Big Ed Dudley of Colorado Springs, Colo., president of the National Professional Golfers association, had another tournament victory to his credit today—the $1,200 Utah Open. After lagging in the distance, he forged to the front on the final 18 holes yesterday and wound up with a 72-hole total of 278, three strikes better than Leonard Ott of Denver and Johnny Bulla of Chicago with 281s. Dudley made his final round in 69.

CHARLES VS. BURLEY

PITTSBURGH, June 29—The odds were about even today as Ezzard Charles, 20-year-old Cincinnati, and Charley Burley, local welterweight, prepared for their repeat performance in Hickey park tonight. Charles, the nation's third ranking welterweight, snapped Burley's string of 36 straight here several weeks ago, although going into the ring a 3 1/2 to one underdog. Local interest is so great that a new gate receipts record is expected at the Hickey park arena tonight.

REDS AT HOME HEAFNER TOPS TO PLAY CUBS IN TOURNAMENT IN RELIEF TILT HELD AT GIRARD

CINCINNATI, June 29—Cincinnati's Reds returned to the home arena today after a very successful invasion of the East climaxed with an even split of yesterday's double-header with Brooklyn. No game was scheduled for today as the Rhinelanders anxiously looked forward to the clash with the Chicago Cubs in the Army-Navy Relief game tomorrow night.

Paul Derringer, the "old faithful" of the Reds mound corps, niched his fourth triumph of the season against the league-leading Dodgers in yesterday's opener, allowing a mere five safeties as the Reds won, 6-3. Whitlow Wyatt was blasted out of the box by the Queen City's 16-hit barrage and was charged with the defeat.

Frank McCormick collected four hits in five trips to the plate while Rookie Max Marshall and Harry Craft each had a trio of blows. Larry French received credit for his eighth verdict of the season without defeat the Brooks took the nightcap, 2-1. Joe Medwick provided "dem bums" with the margin of victory with his eighth-inning triple. Bucky Walters was charged with the loss.

He wound up play yesterday with a 4 and 3 victory over Irl Oliver of Kansas City in the final round.

YANK LEAD CUT TO FIVE, HALF GAMES BY SOX

Ted Lyons, John Humphries In Rare Form; Dodgers Retain Edge Of Nine

By International News Service
Still punchy from yesterday's ordeal, the Yankees today were wondering just what happened to them in Chicago. The scoreboard recorded: first game—White Sox 6; Yankees 2; second game—Chicago 13, New York 1.

Not since last August 3 had the haughty American league rulers been set back on their dusty pantaloons in both ends of a double-header. But there was no doubt about who was boss yesterday.

Old Ted Lyons, who has been tossing 'em up for the Pale Hose for more than two decades, whipped the Yanks in the opening joust and thereby tallied the 25th victory of his long and valuable career. In the second game, Johnny Humphries went the distance as Ernie Bonham, the New Yorkers' glamour boy, faltered under the strain of White Sox clouds. The double defeat left the Yankees only five and a half games ahead of the Boston, who divided a twin bill with Cleveland.

The Red Sox took the opener, 8 to 3, then lost the nightcap, 3 to 2. The Sox scored eight runs in the fifth frame of the first tilt. Chubby Dean singled Oris Hockett home with the winning run in the eighth stanza of the finale. Detroit beat Philadelphia, 3 to 2, in the initial contest, then lost the nightcap, 3 to 0, as Pitcher Lum Harris limited the Tigers to five bingles. Don Ross' single in the ninth gave Detroit the opening game.

Washington swept both ends of a doubleheader with St. Louis, winning by scores of 14 to 13 and 7 to 6. Bill Zuber won his own game in the opener, driving in the winning tally with a double in the sixth. George Caster suffered his first defeat of the year in the finale.

Bums Hold Nine Edge

In the National league, Brooklyn split a twin bill with Cincinnati, while their chief challengers, St. Louis did likewise. As a result the Dodgers today remain nine games in the lead.

The Reds won the opener for the flock, 6 to 3, as a result of 16 resounding bingles. Paul Derringer stifled the opposition with but five hits during the hickory assault by his Cincy mates. Led by Larry French, who scored his eighth victory doing one inning of relief work, the Dodgers evened the count with a 2 to 1 triumph in the aftermath contest.

Pittsburgh rocked and rolled, slashed and smashed the New York Giants in both ends of a doubleheader with a total of seven home runs—more than Buccanese Manager Frankie Frisch had imagined listed in record books—the final counts being 8 to 7 and 9 to 3. Elbie Fletcher's homer in the ninth accounted for the first Pirate victory. With Bob Klinger hurling five-hit ball, the Pirates clipped in with three circuit blasts to help him along to victory in the nightcap.

Ernie Koy's single in the 15th inning gave Philadelphia 2 to 1 triumph over St. Louis in the opening game. Pitcher Tom Hughes, who had gone the full 15 innings was struck by a pitched ball and Koy's hit scored Stan Benjamin who had been sent in to run for Hughes.

The Cardinals came back as the Philly shadows fell to win the finale, 3 to 1, behind five-hit hurling by Lon Warneke.

Boston beat Chicago, 3 to 0, in the opener, but the Cubs fought back to a 5 to 1 win in the final test.

More and more, Nazi Germany seems, in Byron's phrase, "like a scorpion ringed with fire."

Retired Farmer Worries About War, Ends His Life

Samuel Jacob Hoy, 62, Dies In Yard At Home Of His Brother-In-Law

SHOTGUN DEATH WEAPON

Coroner Returns Verdict Of Suicide Following Investigation

Samuel Jacob Hoy, 62, a retired farmer living with his brother-in-law, James Storts, near the Pickaway-Franklin county line, killed himself Saturday in an unusual case of suicide. Coroner B. T. Hedges, Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Bryan Custer investigated the death. Mr. Hedges returning the suicide finding.

Hoy was living with his brother-in-law and was in no apparent ill health, but had often been heard to state that he would never be a burden to any one.

A bachelor, he seated himself in the farm yard near the house and placed a double-barreled shotgun to his heart using a stick to touch off the trigger.

Storts and neighbors were in the barnyard when they heard the shot and on reaching the scene Hoy was dead.

Coroner Hedges said the man probably died instantly.

Only motive for the man's action was the fact that he had been worried for sometime about the war situation and the fact that he had to register in the fourth draft sign up. Since he signed his draft papers the 62-year-old man has made daily trips to the mail box to get the papers and read the war news, according to friends.

Even though he would never have been called into military service, the war and draft had preyed on his mind for several weeks. With the set backs the Allies have been receiving in the last week, it is believed that this might have been his only motive for taking his life.

No letter or note could be found to explain the action.

After the inquiry by county officials the body was taken to the Kistler Funeral Home, Lithopolis.

TRAINING IN GAS DEFENSE VITAL, COUNCIL AVERS

Importance of home gas defense training, opening at 7:30 Monday evening in the high school auditorium, is being stressed by Civilian Defense officials who point out that every person connected with every defense unit is required to participate in the training program.

J. Wray Henry, high school principal who took special training at Ohio State university two weeks ago, will conduct the class. It will be held only two nights, Monday and Wednesday. The course will be progressive, so attendance at the Monday session is imperative.

The course will not be repeated at least before Winter, so Defense Council officials are urging all to take it now.

There will be no meeting of the Civilian Defense Council Monday evening in order to permit all members of the staff to take the gas training. They must participate in the training course.

JULY'S QUOTA FOR WAR BOND SALES $45,200

Smith Awaiting Reports From County Covering Totals For June

Pickaway county's War Bond quota for July has been established at $45,200, an increase of $4,300 over June's $40,900.

Earl A. Smith, chairman of Bond sales in the county, said Monday that he will not have June reports completed for several days, but that everything points to about half a quota.

The county passed its May quota of $34,000 by about $10,000, but June has seen a big reduction in sales.

The state's Bond quota for July is $55,151,000.

During May the state collected $35,899,000 in Bond sales, this being above its $31,769,000 quota. Final June report will not be made for some time yet.

GROCERIES, PLUGS GONE IN REPORTED THEFTS

Two thefts were reported by Circleville police over the week end.

William Hascon, Circleville RFD, reported to police Saturday evening that someone entered his car parked in an alley between Franklin and Main streets, and stole several dollars worth of groceries.

Someone broke into the Circleville Oil company plant recently and took 90 spark plugs. The plugs were valued at $63.

ship sank so quickly—ten minutes—that he had time only to pull on his pants, and he got into the lifeboat without shoes. So the Nazi commander gave the barefoot Argentine captain a new pair of shoes.

Note: While in the submarine's chart room, Capt. Scales had a chance to take a furtive glance at the sub's chart, noted that it had sailed quite close to New York.

HEAT ON NELSON

There was a very good reason for that "spokesman said" story that Donald Nelson will shortly "reorganize" WPB.

This inspired story was put out several days after Nelson had hotly defended certain of his $1-a-year assistants whom the plain-talking Truman committee caustically denounced. The inference of Nelson's statement then was that he intended to disregard the committee and not shake-up WPB. Reason for his subsequent change of mind was potent inner WPB pressure.

According to WPB insiders, three top officials let it be known that they were seriously considering resigning unless Nelson climbed off his high horse and got rid of the obstructive deadwood. These three executives are James Knowlson, director of the Industry Operations Division; William Batt, head of the Requirements Committee; and Houlder Hudgins, chief of the Purchasing Division.

Faced with the possibility of such a walk-out, Nelson decided—according to insiders—that maybe he had better do some house-cleaning, so word of this intention was put out indirectly through the planted story.

TWO WPB FACTIONS

How far Nelson goes in his "reorganization" remains to be seen. Real inside fact is that his ablest and most conscientious advisers have been urging him to clean up WPB for a long time.

It is an open secret that two groups have been warring for dominance in Nelson's inner council. One, led by John Lord O'Brien, former corporation lawyer, who is WPB general counsel, and Sidney Weinberg, Wall Street banker who is Nelson's executive assistant, has been pressuring him against a shake-up.

O'Brien and Weinberg were the real authors of Nelson's letter defending the $1-a-year men. Weinberg also is credited with chief responsibility for bringing in other bankers and business-minded moguls.

One of them, now under quiet investigation by the Justice Department, is charged with placing a huge war contract that nets his company more than $25,000 a week. Another, Walker Mason, recently made New England regional director, is charged with blocking the construction of a big shipyard, later approved over his head, and with writing a widely distributed letter in 1940 declaring that if Roosevelt were re-elected, policy holders would be in danger of losing their insurance.

Insiders also say the O'Brien Weinberg group has been coking up Nelson with the idea that he is a sure-fire 1944 presidential white hope.

OTHER ADVISERS

The opposing group of Nelson advisers is made up of former businessmen, experts, and technicians interested neither in playing politics nor nursing the tender sensibilities of bungling $1-men. This group sincerely admires and respects Nelson, considers him an able, sincere executive. But they feel he has been far too tender-hearted in dealing with proven incompetence, and unless he gets rid of the deadwood, and does it fast, his organization is certain to go the way of the late and unlamented OPM.

NOTE: Nelson is due for some other personal jolts from the Truman committee and also the War Frauds Division of the Justice Department.

CYCLIST HURT IN CRASH AT UPTOWN INTERSECTION

William Jennings Booth, Lancaster pike, in making a left hand turn Saturday night at Watt and Court streets, ran his bicycle into the car of John Caldwell, South Court street, and received lacerations of the forehead. Both the cycle and car were headed south and the youth did not know that the car was behind him as he started to make the turn.

TWO DECREES ISSUED

Common Pleas Judge Meeker Terwilliger handed down two decision on divorce cases Saturday. In the cases both women were granted decrees and permanent alimony. Ethel Pyles obtained her decree from Ira Pyles on gross neglect charges and Margie Mosley a similar decree on her charges against James Mosley.

MARRIAGE PERMIT ISSUED

Marriage license was issued Saturday in Covington, Kentucky, to James E. Gibson, 21, mechanic, and Mary L. Reeser, 21, both of Circleville.
